Wright Hits Trust Distortion; Strikers Tighten Ranks

The state-wide dairy farmers' strike continued late last night as leaders of the Dairy Farmers Union and representatives of the milk trust and distributors met at City Hall to ne-gotiate a possible settlement of the three-day milk stoppage.

Archie Wright, leader of the triking dairy farmers, conferred late in the night with representatives of big milk producing compa-nies, Sheffield and Bordens, and insisted that the farmers be paid a flat rate of $2.25 a hundred pounds flat rate of $2.25 a hundred pounds for the milk.

Mayor LaGuardia, who called the conference, between the strikers, producers and distributors, remained at his office in City Hall to await the outcome of the parley.

After meeting all day in the airconditioned rooms at World's Fair City Hall, representatives of the striking dairy farmers and the milk distributors recessed at 4:30 P. M. and continued their parley at City Hall in Manhattan at 8 P. M.

"A little progress has been made." said Mayor LaGuardia when the Summer City Hall conference concluded.

All conferees, he pointed out "I'll be available at all times as will the Federal and State repre-sentatives who have met here all day."

At 11 o'clock in the morning, the Mayor met with more than 50 representatives of dairy farmers, distributors, and the milk companies and proposed that only the representatives of the strikers and the distributors sit down in conference.

Thereupon, it was agreed by all parties that a small group of 15 representing both sides—and the Pederal and state governments

Editor, Daily Worker:

A word about the milk situation. As you know the price of milk is $2.25 per hundred pounds.

Now, I'm a farmer boy myself and I can tell you that a hundred pounds of milk is a lot of squirts in any man's language and two or three days hard work for the cow besides.

For years the milk trust has milked the farmer cleaner than the farmer milked his cows. The farmer in return, gets hay and the pleasure of section his cows set it.

For Nazi Germany, the trade credit agreement with the U.S.S.R. was, in a great measure, a retreat of German fascist war economy. This, of course, is hinted at by bourgeois reporters from Berlin and Moscow.

The Herald Tribune's Joseph

Editor, Daily Worker:

A word about the milk situation. As you know the price of milk is $2.25 per hundred pounds.

Now, I'm a farmer boy myself and I can tell you that a hundred pounds of milk is a lot of squirts in any man's language and two or three days hard work for the cow besides.

For years the milk trust has milked the farmer cleaner than the farmer milked his cows. The farmer in return, gets hay and the pleasure of seeing his cows eat it.

Now hay is more expensive, on account of crop failures and the farmer is in a spot. TRAVEL

Although definite decisions were not given by the umpires, tactical maps confirmed what observers had seen. It was a poor day for the motorized forces. The First Cavalry of the 7th Mechanized Brigade darted here and there but at every turn found roads blocked with

The Tribune Wants to Plow Under the Farmers

• If one plowed under gallons and gallons of badly needed milk, and then plowed under a few thousand hard-working up-state farmers also, it would just suit the cold-blooded and contemptuous Herald Tribune. That is the solution of this arch-reactionary Republican organ for the present situation in which the farmers are fighting for their right to live.

Said the Tribune in a sneering editorial yesterday:

"Fundamentally, the reason (for the present condition) is because there are too many of him (the farmer), he produces too much milk. . . . "

And this, too, in the face of the fact that milk is the fluid of life for children of the needy. That there is a people's market for all the milk the farmers produce and more (at prices that the people can pay), is shown by the $310,000 for advertising milk allotted by the State.

The Tribune isn't fooling when it advocates doing away with its self-made "oversupply" of farmers. Only its method and that of the big, powerful Borden-Sheffield Trust is by starving them out. Now they're slandering and trying to smash the farmers' rightful strike. This follows logically their recent Woodrum assaults upon the WPA, all body blows to the mass buying power so essential for the farmer's city market.

What really needs plowing under is the robber power of the big milk trusts. Here is where all the milk profits go-at the expense of both the farmers and consumers. The ruthless protection of these robbers by the Tribune proves once more the rascality and treachery of the Hoover-Dewey Republicans against the farmers.

The present fight of the farmers through their Dairy Farmers Union is reasonable and just. Even the Tribune must admit that "everybody knows that the farmer does not get a decent return for his production." The Tribune, of course, only says that the better to cut the farmers and consumers throats, and the easier to feather the nests of the milk trusts.

One of the brightest spots of the present struggle is the fine way in which labor, and above all the CIO, have shown solidarity with the farmers and have come to their aid against the common enemy. This sort of support to the farmers from city people of all denominations is the way to lick the milk

A Label of IMPURITY

· The reading public is pretty much accustomed to the treasonous attacks upon democracy and the filthy journalism of the Hearst press. For that reason, Hearst circulation has gone down in many places and a few Hearst gutter sheets have gone the way of all flesh.

Now comes the Federal Trade Commission and does another real service to the people by bringing forth evidence that Hearst publications are poison in advertising content as they have been long known to be in ceditorial and news policy. The FTC has filed a complaint against Hearst Magazines, Inc., charging it with illegal and fraudulent practices in connection with Good Housekeeping guarantees and labels.

According to the complaint, big manufacturers have been placing advertisements in Good Housekeeping making all sorts of false claims about their worth and purity and the magazine has been supplying special labels guaranteeing these claims. This, of course, brings in more advertising business to Hearst. It doesn't seem to matter at all to the magazine that the foods, cosmetics, medicines and other products, which it guarantees, may be poisonous to the buying public. In other words, the Good Housekeeping guarantee on a product appears to be as dangerous to the human body as the Hearst label on a publication is to human decency and progress.

The Hearst Magazines, Inc., gives a defense which is a gem. It wails that the FTC complaint is motivated by "communistic theories," "communistic groups,"-that is, the whole thing is a communist plot. That bogey is also typically Hearstian-and raising it is almost invariably a confession of guilt.

The Dies Committee Furnishes the Cue

· The real service which the un-American Dies Committee performs for the enemies of American democracy is strikingly revealed in the last radio harangue of the fascist demagogue, Coughlin.

Coughlin used the red-baiting and irresponsible testimony before the Dies outfit to justify his own crime of sponsoring, organizing, and inciting the so-called "Christian Front" to gangsterism throughout the country. (Of course, it doesn't faze such a mountebank as Coughlin that he's howled himself blue in the face denying all responsibility for the "Christian Front.") Last Sunday he called for the organization of a "counter-force" which would carry out his "Franco way" of violence and bloodshed.

A "counter-force" against what? And Coughlin replies against "the Popular Front of Bolshevism" exposed by the Dies Committee. Actually, the Dies Committee has been "exposing" and "smearing" every person who expressed opposition to the activities of the Rome-Berlin axis abroad and at home. Its vicious campaign against the Communists has been aimed at labor, the New Deal, and very nearly every outstanding progressive individual and organization in the nation.

What the Dies Committee has been "exposing" and "slandering" is American democracy, and those who stood up for it. To be sure, these are just what Coughlin wants the "Christian Front" gangs to attack-and it is what they are attacking through anti-Semitism and other violence in almost every

The Dies Committee has made a few empty passes at the fascists. But, of course, it wouldn't even make a pass at Coughlin, though Fritz Kuhn, Hitler's Nazi agent, has brazenly admitted his connections with

'Vote Progressive'-

Editor, Daily Worker:

The Reublican reactionaries have sabotaged the New Deal on a national, state and city-wide basis. They were the ones who together with the reactionary democrats sponsored the Woodrum Bill. They helped to defeat the President's peace policy and his lending and housing bills.

This means that we in East Harlem must go on suffering in slums. It means that men and boys must go without work. It means that war and fascism are brought closer to our own country

As far as Republican activity is concerned in New York State, every one knows what they have done to

Women in China's Medical Service

CHUNGKING (By Mail).-The registered women doctors, nurses and pharmacists of China number 941, 3,779 and 273 respectively, making a total of 4,493. Out of this number nearly half are engaged in the wartime medical service. Actually there are many more women working in the field of medicine for the nation's cause, as a large percentage is unregistered.

In China's three leading medical services alone, at least 2,000 Chinese women are engaged, at daily risk of their lives, in ministering to the wounded and dying. The three medical services are the Army Medical Service, the Medical Relief Commission of the Chinese Red Cross and the National Health Admit

Of these 2,000 women, nurses are by far the greatest in number, totalling 1,384. They are followed numerically by 195 doctors, 165 dressers, 73 pharmacists. About 200 women are serving in various capacities in hospitals and subsidiary organizations of the National Health Administration.

These women have steeled themselves to tasks forare braving shot and shell by clinging to their posts at collecting stations to which the wounded are brought from the front. Three of them are doctors, three are pharmacists and the rest, numbering 58, are nurses. This number excludes those sent to these stations by the Chinese Red Cross, which is co-

Letters and Diaries Reflect Japanese Soldiers' Weariness

CHUNGKING (By Mail).-Dead men tell no tales but what they leave behind does. Chinese mobile units operating in the triangular Shanghai-Nanking-Hangchow area have come into possession of num-berless diaries and letters either found on the bodies of dead Japanese officers and soldiers or taken from war captives. Passages therefrom, when pieced together, provide an illuminating picture of the despondency gripping Japanese troops on the Eastern Front, or, for that matter, on most other fronts in China. Fear for their own safety, worries over their families, the feeling of imminent doom, war weariness and petty and often laughable superstitions, are candidly recorded in these notes and letters.

Second Lieutenant Ninomura wrote to his wife Kishigawa Hidezo, but did not live long enough to mail the letter. Part of it reads: "The first replacement brought over 200 men to our battalion. But where are they now? The majority have been either killed or wounded in action. Only 33 are still alive. By the time the 2nd, 3rd and other replacements arrive, I am afraid none of the old soldiers will be left.

From his garrison post in north Anhwei, Japanese officer Onowashi Sakuko wrote a letter to Teramoto Nobuhisa, his sweetheart back home. The letter fell into Chinese hands when its author was captured. The following passage is of interest: "Many of our troops were routed and fell back. War is a miserable busiaround us, but whenever our own units are reduced we are immediately in danger."

The precarious position of Japanese troops of the Yangtze in Kiangsu, Anhwei and Chekiang may be better understood when it is known that one Chinese mobile army alone has engaged in more than 300 battles with the Japanese. Nipponese losses were estimated at 5,000. Tidings of this constant process of nibbling away reaches the ears of the Japanese and their sense of insecurity deepens.

This April in south Kiangsu, for example, several hundred Japanese soldiers lost their lives between Kaozeng and Lishul on the Kiangsu-Anhwel border south of the Yangtze. The corpses were brought back to these towns for cremation on April 11. The few Chinese still there were ordered not to leave their houses at all that day. They were forbidden even to peep through their windows to watch the big bonfire consuming the dead soldiers in the public square.

Japanese militarists may continue to urge their people to be prepared for a long-drawn-out war, but no hope is more cherished among the rank and file of their soldiers than that of "an early victory." But many of them have their own misgivings. Masaaki, a petty officer, wrote to his friend Ohne Se-kizo, "You should know China is so boundless that no one can cover its entire extent. When will we return in triumph? No one knows. We wait patiently. What

'As for a victorious return—this time I shall probably be carried home in a wooden box. Even should I be spared in this war and return home alive, where am I going to find another such job as I was forced to relinquish when I was called to the colors?"—The above quotation was from Private Ninomoto Eimei's diary.

In his letter to his friend Kojima Seiji, Captain Shioin his letter to his irreda kojima seliji, capitali shiomi Mitsuru said: "In my opinion, serious problems will arise if our reservists are kept in service for more than one year. Now that we have extended our operations over such a wide area, how are we going to conclude the war and reap its benefits?"

Most of the Japanese soldiers do not understand what they are fighting for. Listen to Akikama Sue-matsu, a Japanese private, who in his letter to a friend, said: "I still do not understand what it is all about. The only thing I know is that I must obey orders and not ask questions." In a similar vein wrote Nakajo Toraichu: "We are often harassed by Chinese Whenevelle. Nakajo Toraichu: We are value at a new place, we guerrillas. Whenever we arrive at a new place, we guerrillas. Whenever we arrive at a new place, we

A Daily Prayer For Today Written Thirty Years Ago

By MIKE GOLD

NCLE BILL CRAWFORD is an artist who once studied kindly cowboys and Indians of the far west with Frederic Remington, and the savage hogs and monopolists of Wall Street with Art Young. He is my good neighbor, and it's an honor.

Uncle Bill is almost seventy years old, but when he puts on his ten-gallon hat, curls up his mustaches, and utters a few quiet curses on Hitler or Garner, his blue eyes flashing, you know that America will always be

That "muckraker" generation in which Uncle Bill grew up was one of the finest this country has yet produced. We speak of the Gay Nineties; we should also remember they were the Radical Nineties. Men like Lincoln Steffens, Eugene V. Debs, Bill Haywood, Pather McGlynn, Tom Johnson, Henry George, Governor Altgeld, Peter Finley Dunne, or the cartoonists Keppler, Art Young and Will Crawford, fought the Trusts with daring, precision, and deadly American humor.

They lost their generation's battle, as the presence of the Sixty Families who own and rule America will testify. But they kept alive the traditional fiame of American freedom, and handed it on to our generation burning as pure and high as it did in the hands of Jefferson and Lincoln. Father Coughlin and the Dies Committee blame it all on Moscow, but it was really Mr. Dooley.

After some thirty years, Uncle Bill has made up his mind that he really ought go through his old copies of Puck and Life, and clip out the drawings he contributed there. While he was doing this in his woods-shack which the kids around here believe was built by the Indians, I had a chance to study a little in this chapter of American journalism.

The struggle against monopoly capitalism is harder and more dangerous today. We know that all the anti-trust laws in the world will not be enough to destroy the fascist monster which monopoly has created to defend its blood-stained wealth in a time of crists. Pascism spits on law. Fascism denies that the people have any rights to control capitalism. Fascism goes back to the jungle-laws, and relies

The muckrakers could not forsee all this, naturally. But they did lay out the main line of attack on monopoly. And if the Dies Committee still persists in blaming it all on Lenin, let them know that many of the facts arising from the anti-monopolist movement in America influenced Lanin's thinking

BECAUSE the muckrakers were so fundamentally right, the massive cartoons of Keppler and Art Young and others that one finds in the old Puck seem as fresh as if they were done today. Some of the writing and comment could also go iton this week's New Masses. Here is one sample. It appeared in Puck just thirty years ago, on the issue of December 8, 1909.

It is titled: "A DAILY PRAYER—Respectfully Submitted to the Chaplain of the United States Senate."

Under the black box in which the prayer is printed, one reads: "There is nothing funny about this. Nor is it intended to be scandalous. If you like it, and think it applies, cut it out and send it to your

Yes, it still applies, to the Congress of Treason that has just ad-rned, and you can still cut it out and send it to one of the traitors at Washington. The language is strong enough to satisfy any unem-ployed father of a family who has been thrown on the breadline anew by the Wall Street hogs.

A DAILY PRAYER

O Lord, we know that certain of these Thy Servants, the Honorable Gentlemen who make up the United States Senate, are wholly Unworthy in Thy Sight.

Unworthy in Thy Sight.

We know that some of them are with us by grace of Force or Fraud or Dishonest Legislatures. We know that many of them have accepted Retainers from Mammon, and come here only to Lobby for Unrighteousness. And we know that most of them are idolaters and unclean, bowing down before the God of Complacency, and spotted with the Leprousy of Self-Pride.

Yet, Lord, we ask Thee not to judge too quickly Old Dotards blinded by Concett, or Swollen Gluttons whose Brains are Halt, and whose Hearts have been Hardened by Fat Years.

Judge them not yet, though they have transgressed their Oaths, and Profaned Our Temples. Spew them not out of Thy Mouth. Let Thy Light shine on them. Give them Understanding—a Little, anyway, if not much.

way, if not much.

Teach them that, while they Pat One Another on the Back,

Teach them that, while they Pat One Another on the Back, Thieves in High Places Break In and Steal, and Men and Women and Little Children are made to die, body and soul.

Be gracious unto them, Lord, that some day they may learn that Big Business, built on Graft and Privilege, is not the Sole End of Mankind; that Thou who art concerned in the Fall of a Sparrow, also takest some Note of Widows and Orphans, and Citizens of the United States, and All Others Who Cannot Help Themselves.

We ask this in the Name of Him who Scourged the Money-Changers from the Temple. Amen.

Shingles—
A Common Ailment

Shingles is the common name of a disease called herpes zoster. It is an infection of a nerve lying next to the spinal column by a filtrable virus (a very tiny germ which cannot be seen even with a microcope).

The germs spread through the nerve as it runs along the skin and causes groups of blisters to appear on inflamed patches of skin along the courses of the nerve affected. Often there is much pain in the inflamed nerve which may even last some time after the blisters on the skin have disappeared. Ordinarily only one side of the body is affected (because the nerve supplies one side of the body only).

The disease usually disappears in two or three weeks without leaving any after effects. Treatment consists in protecting the inflamed blisfered parts with collodion or protective dressings, salves etc. There is no specific treatment. Diet has no effect one way or the other.

The disease does not appear to be contagious, only certain individuals being likely to contract the disease.

Last year Henry was a bigger favorite. Because the then champion Ambers never had a terrific knockout record, he was considered an inferior sort of lightweight champ. It was only after he had come within a short margin of upsetting the great Armstrong in the most within a short margin of upsetting the great Armstrong in the most furiously fought lightweight battle in the memory of ringsiders that he got something like his proper appraisal. It was then that his fine record was looked into, that his fighting heart and tough background were talked about. He had fought two rounds in Pittsburgh without a whimper, and won, after having his jaw fractured. He had the rugged Montanez groggy at the end of their first fight, and gave him a boxing lesson in their return. He had taken Canzoneri's hardest shots before the veteran Tony was as washed up as he is now (three years ago), and had come heart numbing enough to win the championship. Since and had one back punching enough to win the championship. Since last year's fight with Armstrong, whom he rocked worse than the now middleweight Garcia did, he has beaten some more good lightweights cisively, including the Baby Arizmendi so tough for Henry.

Lightweight Champs Have to Be Good

The truth of the matter as everyone knows now is that Ambers never was a "cheese champion." It's been possible in the past to take a big clown like Carnera and rush him through a subnormal heavyweight division to a "cheese championship. But anyone, at any time, who ever punched his way through the teeming ranks of hungry and ambitious lightweights to get to the top is a real champion. No phony fighters ever ruled the lightweight roost.

What we said before last year's bout goes again this year. We said then that to figure the winner of a fight between boys like Armstrong and Ambers you had to just get right down to their physical attributes and forget all questions of moxle and will to win. As we saw it last year, we figured the heavier punching Henry to have enough of an edge in fighting equipment to put Lou on the floor and win a close one by decision. That's just about the way we feel about this

The only change in fighting equipment since last year's fight is the poorer condition of Armstrong's hands, and we're certain they're strong enough after his three months rest to do the bidding of his magnificent and almost tireless body. In Henry's favor is the lessened likelihood that he will be as badly cut as he was last fight. He's nad some bothersome teeth extracted and a better mouthpiece fitted as a result. Discount any Ambers' advantage in now knowing Henry's style. Henry's style is to move forward and throw more and heavier style. Refry's style is to move loward and throw more and nearby punches than the other man, picking off as many as such a style allows by clever blocking and twisting. To retreat from Armstrong, as Barney Ross did, is to catch the full power of his hooks as he moves in throwing them as fast as his powerful arms can throw them, and to be on the defensive from the first moment. To move in, as Ambers says he will, is to stand toe to toe and exchange short punches with the man who throws more of them than any little fighter that ever pulled on gloves. And eventually to be forced backwards anyhow.

Ambers' equipment is speed afoot, ring savvy, ruggedness, a good assortment of not too heavy punches and a jarring, cutting uppercut that he works effectively from in close. He can make a man's head jerk up, his teeth rattle, his lips split and his head swim with that punch. Both these boys can take all kinds of punches and keep moving. What it looks like to us is another slambang affair with Henry's heavier guns again winning out, perhaps more decisively than last time. He'll have to give everything he has to beat this determined Ambers boy, but everything he has is too much for any fighter within ten pounds of him.

May Retire After This Year

As we said in the Daily Worker a year ago, 1939 will probably be Armstrong's last in the ring. He's too smart to keep going any longer than he knows he can at top efficiency, and doesn't even want to wait till it gets close to figure. Henry doesn't even want to wait till it gets close to figure. Henry would like to be finished with the training rigors and spend more time with his charming wife and four-year-old daughter. He also wants to finish the story of his life he's working on, a punch packed story parts of which we've been privileged to see, entitled "Down the Glory Road." It's been discovered that besides his other talents this amazing man who wanted to be a surgeon and who writes good poetry and bangs a wicked tune on the plano in addition to being the worlds' best fighter, can also act effectively and sincerely, and he may do a nighter to also act effectively and sincerely, and he may do a nictur

But little of that will be in his mind when he climbs into the ring at 10 P.M. tonight to fight. Or perhaps much of it will—perhaps it's just that always with him that makes him so hard to beat that obody has done it in fifty tries.

nobody has done it in fifty tries.

Before closing a column on tonight's fight, it seems necessary to say just a word about some of the vague whispers of "fix" that have floated around a few pool parlors and found their way onto page one of that yellow Hearstian Sunday rag called the "Enquirer." Just a word. It's so clear and patent that just such boys as Ambers and Armstrong have brought complete honesty into the fight game, and that either would rather cut off a leg than do any less than his best inside the ring that this frustrated and phony little clear of the inside the ring, that this frustrated and phony little clique of tin horn crooks spits out its vindictive whispers. They do it with Louis too, and giving space to such foul mouthed phonies is certainly the

Camilli Homers, All Dodgers Hit to Chase Sunkel -Hamlin Chalks Up 16th Win, Loses Shutout in 8th

Our Brooklyn Dodgers took the steam out of the red hot St. Louis Cardinals yesterday with a crushing 7-1 victory that opened the home stand against the Western invaders in high and sent the Ebbets Fielders back into the first division ahead of the Giants.

"Hot Potato" Luke Hamlin, revell-ing in the heat and humidity, over-powered the cards to chalk up his 16th victory of the year against nine defeats. The whole Brooklyn batting order, led by Dolph Camilli with his 20th home run, and Tut Stainback and Art Parks, who clicked for three hits apiece, overpowered the sensational southpay Tom Sunkel and kept up the bom-The Cards defeat, plus the victory of the Reds in Philadelphia, put them back 4½ games behind the lead. Bears Beat Yanks In Exhibition COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The Yankees lost an 11-inning exhibition game to their Newark farm team here at the birthplace of baseball today, 5-4. The game was chiefly notable for the major league form shown by pitcher Borowy, late of Fordham, in holding the Yanks, and in the year's debut of Spud Chandler for the Yanks, Chandler went nine full innings. An overflow crowd of 10,000 camout for the game.

After the game the Yanks caught a train for Chicago, where they open their third Western trip against the White Sox. Monte Pearson will probably start.
